Recovery Support Services

SD BEHAVIORAL HEALTH
Department of Social Services

There are many paths for people to address their recovery journey.

In addition to traditional treatment/ therapy services, recovery support services are available in South Dakota. These services promote recovery from a substance use disorder in conjunction with, or instead of traditional treatment. Services available include supported housing, peer support services, and intensive case management– services "beyond treatment".

Peer Support

Peer support services provide confidential, evidence-based coaching from trained individuals who have lived experience with substance use and are in active recovery. Individuals working on their recovery can utilize peer support services.

Peer support specialists provide a wide range of activities which may include:

- Advocating for people in recovery
- Sharing resources and building skills
- Building community and relationships
- Leading recovery groups
- Mentoring and setting goals

Support Services for Pregnant and Parenting Women

Recovery Support for New and Expecting Mothers with Substance Use Disorder:

Bethany Christian Services – ReNew (Recovering Mothers with Newborns) program provides specialized case management services to support expectant mothers with a history of opioid and/or methamphetamine misuse and prepares them to care for their child and transition back into their community.

ReNew integrates evidence-based models and practices across formal systems of child welfare, medical, and substance use treatment from pregnancy through the first year of the child's life.

Goals of the ReNew Program:

- Help families stay together
- Successful recovery before and after birth
- Promote treatment compliance and maternal health
- Improve birth outcomes
- Reduce risks and adverse complications from prenatal substance exposure for moms and newborns

The ReNew team helps guide mothers through issues such as legal, housing, child welfare through a wraparound approach with agencies involved in recovery work, and peer-to-peer support services for pregnant and parenting women. The program helps them develop positive, life-changing behaviors that equip them with the skills for successful recovery before and after the birth of their child.

Supported Housing

The Supported Housing for Addiction Recovery and Empowerment (SHARE) program provides safe, stable, recovery-oriented housing paired with flexible, individualized support services. It is a community-based housing model where individuals live in a real-world environment while receiving voluntary support tailored to their goals. Services may include case management, peer support, connection to treatment, employment assistance, and life skills development. The focus of SHARE is on long-term stability, increased independence, and sustained recovery. Individuals are supported in managing their own lives, strengthening skills, and building meaningful connections in the community so that recovery can be maintained beyond formal services. Services provided within some supported housing options may include:

- Direct assistance to obtain basic life necessities
- Assistance to perform daily living activities
- Liaison services
- Employment services
- Other case management services based on the needs of the individual

Men and women 18 and older with a substance use disorder or experiencing issues related to substance use. Admission requirements vary by provider. See the back side of this brochure for where to find a listing of SHARE providers. Contact a provider for more information.
